Crowd Enraged Because Two Italians! Attacked a Boy Accused of Stealing Door Knobs and There Were Cries of "Lynch Them."

One Thousand Men and Boys Joined in the Chase, but the Italians Cut a Wide Swath Using Shears and an Awl as Weapons.

Twenty men and boys were stabbed by two desperate Italians during a running fight this afternoon, which began on One Hundred and Nineteenth street and ended at One Hundred and Eighteenth street and Second

At the time that the stabbings occurred a thousand men, women and boys were chasing the Italians and threatening to lynch them. The reserves from two precincts were ordered out to guard the two prisoners after they had been captured, and it was a good thing that there was a large torce present, for the crowd was in a dangerous mood and violence would certainly have been done the men.

HOW BATTLE STARTED.

a vacant house which adjoins Public School No. 159. The school children ive been raiding this house for several days, carrying off lead pipe, window frames and other things. Yesterday the owners of the house engaged Caesar Pambirino, of No. 223 East One Hundred and Eleventh street, and his sevenen-year-old brother Oratzio to watch the house. Late this afternoon, as chool children were leaving the school, six of them ran up the front steps and proceeded to tear off the door knobs and locks. The two Pambirinos ran out, Caesar with a pair of shears and his brother with a club in one hand and a shoemaker's awl in the other. Caesar stabled Thomas Halligan, a thirteen-year-old lad, in the arm and the boy fell down the front steps in a swoon. That precipitated the trouble.

Hundreds of children gathered in front of the house and a storm of miswiles was sent at the two men. William McCusker, the janitor of the school. ran out and tried to get the children away. The younger Italian, taking him for an enemy, stabbed him twice in the breast with the awl. Some one sent for the police, but before they arrived the two Italians charged on the crowd which had increased to a thousand persons by this time, and made a desperate fight for liberty.

STABBED TWO MORE MEN.

Two men who tried to stop them were stabled and the men started for Second avenue, pursued by the howling crowd. Stones and clubs were thrown after them, and every once in a while some pursuers would catch up and try to stop them. Whenever this happened one or the other of the Ofugitives would turn and stab the man.

In this way twenty persons, several of them young school boys, were Among these were Thomas F. Dwyer. of No. 312 East One Hundred and Nineteenth street, who was stabled in the hand, the side and the face; Arthur Brice, of No. 214 East One Hundred and Nineteenth street. who was stabbed in the face and side, and Fireman Charles Klein. of kingine No. 35, who was stabbed in the hand.

It was Klein who finally brought the two men down. He attacked nem single-handed and laid the older out with a punch in the face and was grappling with the other when he was stabbed.

CROWD SURROUNDS PRISONERS.

Policemen Reardon and Monihan came up during the row and pinioned the two men to the earth until other policemen came to their assistance. en away because The arrival of the reserves and a patrol wagon, however, made it possible to get the men away in safety.

An ambuinger surgeon from the Harlem Hospital dressed the wounds of the twenty people. Two were so badly hurt that they had to be taken to the hospital. The two Italians were taken to the Harlem Court and held without bail to await the result of the injuries of the stabbed personst and he went up in the market. There was a strong plunge on Mimosa, who is owned by Joe Yeiger, the boy plunger. She was backed from 5 to 1 down to 11, to 5 at post time. Mimosa jumped away in front with Emergency and they run head and head to the stretch, where Mimosa came away and won cleverly by two lengths from Young Henry, who closed strong and beat Emergency a neck for the place.

In this race Unmasked did not wear blinkers. He has won all his races this year with blinkers. The blinkers were removed by order of Starter Fitzgenild, who claimed that the horse would run better without blinkers. He informed John McCue, the owner of Unmasked, that the horse would have to run without blinkers or the stewards would refuse his entry. Mr. McCue had no alternative and the horse ran withjout his blinkers. He was a public favorite and badly beaten.

Grandpi made nearly all the running in the second, only being headed once,
and that in the last haif by Dick Roberers, who was in front for a quarter.
Grandpa then came on and won driving by two lengths from Dick Roberts, who was three lengths in front of Flying Buttress.

Czaraphine, the favorite in the fourth, the Bedford Stakes, went to the front at the start, made all the running and was in the lead a furlong from the naish. She had shaken off Austin Allen, who had raced with her to the stretca, but Gold Ten, the second choice, came at her so strong that Lyne was forced to a drive to win by three-quarters of a length. Gold Ten was a length and a half in front of Red Friar, who finished strong.

Wild Thyme Couldn't Last. Wild Thyme, a 6 to 1 chance, beat the gate and set a hot pace, followed by Damon, Duke of Kendal and Dainty. They ran this way to the turn, where Dainty moved up into third place. Wild Thyme was still a couple of lengths in front turning into the stretch, but Dainty closed and, reaching her at the sixteenth pole, came home an easy winner by two lengths. Wild Thyme was four lengths in front of Damon.

McKean, of New Rochelle, and "Caesar" Young married sisters. Here is the statement made by Luse to an Evening World reporter:

"Young had tried five different times to break away from this woman, and as she still pursued him he agreed with his wife to go to Europe for a year, both of them hoping in that time to forget each other. Young settled all of his affairs, so that his interests would be taken care of while he was gone. He made the most elaborate arrangements.

"He and his wife came to our house Friday morning, intending to stay over night so that they could reach the steamship Germanic, which sailed at and she called up the race track and found he was down there. She went to make a scene at the track unless he came home with her.

"He finally compromised by eaying that he would meet her that might to say a last good-by to her. Young came home to dinner and then went out. We have found what he telephoned three times to the St. Paul Hotel to get the woman, but it was 9 o'clock before he communicated with her. Then he made an appointment to meet her at 11 o'clock that night at the One Hundred and Fortieth street station of the Eighth avenue elevated

"Young came back to the house and told me about it. He said he was afraid she was going to make a scene and asked me to go along with him. He said that he had to telephone to her, as she had promised to appear at the steamship pier and make a scene before his wife unless he did. He met her at 11 o'clock and drove in a cab to the Colonial Hotel, in Eighth avenue. I met them there by appointment. That was the first time I ever saw the woman.
